'Organic Terrace Gardening/Farming': Lecture by Captain Jawahar Kothari
(04-02-2017)
REPORT

Captain Jawahar Kothari delivered a lecture on 'Organic Terrace Gardening/Farming' on 04-02-2017. Priyanka Prabhakar Tambe, B. Com. III, welcomed the resource person and informed the students about the purpose of the discussion.

Captain Jawahar Kothari said that today we live in concrete jungle as we are surrounded by tall residential apartments, offices and other structures. In this circumstance, it is difficult to maintain a touch with the nature. Even if we have time, it is impossible to find greenery in the cities because the cities have heavy vehicular traffic and pollution. Therefore, it's a good idea to set up a small garden on the house terrace or at any other empty spaces.

Captain Jawahar Kothari, further told the students that the food that we eat is produced by using chemical fertilizers and pesticides. According to WHO the fruits and vegetables that we eat today have high chemical and pesticide content. This has caused a series of health issues. Today the spread of cancer is attributed to chemical consumption by the health experts. In this critical situation, organic farming is the solution. And when we talk about organic farming we don't need a lot of space. We can start the vegetable garden on the roof top as well. This practice has been becoming very popular in urban areas nowadays.

Captain Kothari further said that we can grow the vegetables required for daily consumption. We can grow chillies, beans, spinach, brinjals, tomatoes, potatoes, corianders etc. and be self-sufficient. He also advised the students that if all households cultivate vegetables in this way we can contribute to the national development. He said that he has started cultivating vegetables at home and found that they grow in an eco-friendly manner. It also provides us with fun and amusement and makes our life happy. Priti Sanjay Chandane, B. Com. I, proposed the vote of thanks and also conducted the proceeding.
